43. Defendant is entitled to a set-off pursuant to the counterclaims, which exceed the amounts owed.

AS AND FOR A FIRST COUNTERCLAIM

44. Defendant repeats and realleges the allegations set forth above as if fully set forth herein.

45. Defendant retained plaintiff in connection with an action which was pending in New York State Supreme Court.

46. By virtue of such retention, plaintiff owed defendant a fiduciary duty to, inter alia, perform services in accordance with professional standards.

47. Plaintiff breached its duty by, inter alia, failing to perform services in accordance with professional standards, failing to act in a competent, diligent and professional manner, incurring unnecessary charges, neglecting deadlines, drafting papers without adequate preparation, providing poor legal advice, providing excessive, unreasonable and, upon information and belief, false bills and then using that as a pretext to extract an excessive and unreasonable contingent fee, accepting and continuing employment although plaintiff's financial interests compromised its exercise of independent professional judgment on behalf of defendant, threatening to cease performing required services unless and until defendant paid charges which were not due at that time, failing to treat defendant's principal with courtesy and consideration by, inter alia, verbally degrading and abusing him and threatening him with bodily harm, making disparaging remarks and/or displaying disrespect to opposing counsel and the court, failing to seek the lawful objectives of defendant by failing to obey reasonable requests or to deliver defendant's papers and property to defendant and threatening, as a means on extracting the turnover of the monies which are now in the Fidelity Escrow Account, to subject defendant to a harsh and expensive litigation which would cost plaintiff virtually nothing while defendant would incur substantial legal fees, among others things.

48. Defendants' conduct was wilful, wanton, and performed recklessly and in conscious disregard of defendant's rights.

49. By reason of the foregoing, defendant has been damaged.

AS AND FOR A SECOND COUNTERCLAIM

50. Defendant repeats and realleges each of the allegations in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

51. Plaintiff and defendant entered into an agreement.

52. Defendant performed all obligations of the agreement on its part to be performed.

53. Plaintiff breached the agreement.

54. By reason of the foregoing, defendant has been damaged.

AS AND FOR A THIRD COUNTERCLAIM

55. Defendant repeats and realleges each of the allegations in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

56. On or about February 3, 2003, at plaintiff's offices, and numerous other times prior thereto, plaintiff through one Ronald Nimkoff represented to defendant through one Robert Herskowitz, inter alia, that it would cost approximately $10,000 to $15,000 to oppose defendant's motion to dismiss and to amend the complaint.

57. The above representations were false, made knowingly or in reckless disregard of the truth, with the intention of deceiving defendant and inducing it to retain plaintiff as counsel. In fact, plaintiff provided a bill to defendant charging approximately $80,000 for the above services.

58. Defendant was not aware of the falsity of the representations, believed the misrepresentations to be true and relied upon, inter alia, the misrepresentations in entering into an agreement with plaintiff.

59. But for the misrepresentations, defendant would not have entered into the agreement with plaintiff and may not have retained plaintiff at all.

60. On or about June 9, 2005, at settlement conference in a courthouse at 140 Grand Street, White Plains, New York, Ronald Nimkoff represented to Robert Herskowitz, inter alia, that he could and would immediately and unilaterally withdraw from representing defendant unless defendant entered into a revised agreement, which agreement guaranteed plaintiff a fee constituting approximately one-third of any recovery.

61. In addition, throughout the representation, plaintiff sent defendant bills which, upon information and belief, contained false and excessive charges, which Nimkoff falsely advised Herskowitz constituted a proper lien against the ultimate recovery in the case in the amount thereof.

62. The above representations were false, made knowingly or in reckless disregard of the truth, with the intention of deceiving defendant and inducing it to enter into a revised agreement with plaintiff.

63. Defendant was not aware of the falsity of the representations, believed the misrepresentations to be true and relied upon, inter alia, the misrepresentations in entering into a revised agreement with plaintiff without advise of independent counsel.

64. But for the misrepresentations, defendant would not have entered into the revised agreement at that time with the terms and conditions contained therein.

65. In addition, in or about May 2006 at plaintiff's offices (during which time Ronald Nimkoff physically threatened Robert Herskowitz), and on other occasions, Ronald Nimkoff represented to Robert Herskowitz, inter alia, that if defendant relieved him as counsel, notwithstanding any amounts defendant would be required to pay a successor attorney, defendant would still be required to pay plaintiff its full fee consisting of approximately one-third of any recovery.

66. The representations were false, made knowingly or in reckless disregard of the truth, with the intention of deceiving defendant and inducing it to continue using plaintiff as an attorney.

67. Defendant was not aware of the falsity of the representations, believed the misrepresentations to be true and relied upon, inter alia, the misrepresentations in continuing to use plaintiff as an attorney.

68. But for the misrepresentations, defendant would not have continued to use plaintiff as an attorney.

69. Plaintiff's conduct was wilful, wanton, and performed recklessly and in conscious disregard of defendant's rights.

70. By reason of the foregoing, defendant has been damaged.

71. Defendant has no adequate remedy at law.

WHEREFORE, defendant demands judgment dismissing the Complaint herein; and, on the counterclaims, damages in a amount to be determined at trial but in all events not less than $2,000,000 and/or rescission of defendant's agreement with plaintiff; punitive damages; together with the interest, costs and the disbursements of this action; attorneys' fees as permitted by law; and such other and further relief as to this Court seems just and proper.
